MOTHER LONDON.

FEEDS, DOCTORS AND TRAINS THREE-QUARTERS OF A MILLION CHILDREN.

MILK AND HANDSHAKE DRILL.

"No child in London to-day is hungry. If you know of one, we shall be glad to hear about him—and he won't be hungry for long."
The London County Council
"mothers" three-quarters of a million London children, from the age of four or younger to the school-leaving age of fourteen, and a spokesman of the Council made the above statement with complete confidence.

Free meals are provided at the Council schools for children whose parents are too poor to pay the small sum asked by the Council.
These meals include dinners, milk, cod-liver oil and malt. The dinners are cooked by the senior girls in the schools, as part of their training in cooking, and they take a pride in making them appetising.
Thirty children are fed at each centre, and fifty meals are provided by each centre for consumption on the premises or elsewhere.

The "Infants."

I went down to a Council school in Bermondsey and saw the babies (officially called "Infants") take their daily pennyworth of milk at half-past ten in the morning. This happens every day: it is as regular a part of the school routine as the daily "Greeting" in which the babies are taught to shake hands and to say "Good morning, Frank"
—or Jimmy or Doris—and thus learn each other's names and the difficult art of politeness!

The older children also have their daily ration of milk, but they were busy with examinations, so I did not see them.

I looked into a big, light room filled with dozens of little tables, with little chairs "pulled up" to them: both chairs and tables might have been made for the Seven Little Dwarfs in the fairy story of "Little Snow-White." Round-faced, clear-eyed, rosy children sat at the little tables; and there was a steady under-current, beneath the chattering, of sucking noises, as the milk was steadily drawn up into thirty or more little mouths through clean straws.

For this is Mother London's latest step in her campaign to make her children sturdy and happy.
The milk arrives every day in bottles sealed with a flat cardboard
cap. A hole is made in the cap, a straw, unwrapped from a sealed paper, is inserted, and the child sucks the milk through the straw.
No dust can get to the milk, and the child does not handle it at all.

I was told that the children enjoy their milk much more taken in this way, and any grown-up who has prolonged a delicious lemon drink through a straw will understand why.

Each child brings a penny a day for milk. Children whose parents are too poor to spare a penny a day are supplied with the milk left over from the daily ritual, so that none goes without.

London children who are physically or mentally handicapped are "mothered" by this marvellous institution even more tenderly than normal children.

There are special schools for children who are blind, or partially blind, mentally defective, tuber-culous, deaf or partially deaf, physically defective, and epileptic.

Open-Air Classes.

Tubercular and anemic children attend the open-air schools and classes. In the new schools under construction the maximum of fresh air and sunlight is kept in view, and casement windows will be installed.

Gardening is an important item in the curriculum at the open-air schools, and the children's temperatures are taken twice a day.
Special periods are set aside for rest on stretchers in the open air.

There are six L.C.C. centres in London for children who stammer, and they are given free bus and tram tickets for their daily journeys. Fifty per cent. of the cases are cured.

All London children are medically examined four times during their school life: on their entrance to the school, on arriving at the ages of eight and twelve, and during the

WOMAN'S PAGE.

CHARMING DESIGNS FOR SPRING.

ROUND THE SHOPS.

[By "EVE"]

Lane, Crawford's are showing some very smart raincoats in their ladies' salon this week. The latest models have transformed the ordinary waterproof coat from a dowdy garment into the very essence of the smartest modern fashion. They combine waterproof efficiency with fashionable style. There is one in brown check with plain facings which looks particularly smart, while another, I thought rather attractive was a waterproof satin in beige, of extraordinary lightness. Artificial silk is used for other models, there being quite a number of popular colours including red, green, blue and brown. For those who prefer a heavier form of waterproof, there is one in brown wool and cotton with yellow facing. To go with these charming raincoats, there are a number of umbrellas in matching colours. I was also shown some Gaytees, which, I believe are seen for the first time locally. In serviceable colours of beige, and beige and brown they are fitted with zip-fasteners down the front. Besides Gaytees, there are goloshes which fit into a rubber bag, which takes up a very small space in one's hand-bag when not required.

Maison Marnac. New fashions are gay as well as becoming, and if a woman feels that the new "frilly" not to say "fluffy," type of frock is not quite suited to her style of beauty, she has no reason to worry; there are plenty of plainer frocks, for to-day's fashion caters for every type of woman. A great deal of attention has been given to the sleeves of both the frock and jacket of the new spring outfit. Every style of daytime frock has its pet sleeve, and these range from the little cape just covering the shoulder, the short puff, elbow length, two-thirds and three-quarter length, to the long sleeve with a loose wrist or a tighter one with a rill or cuff. There are also the flowing sleeves, used, of course, mainly for the dressier afternoon frock and jacket, and there are any number of three-quarter sleeves which have a full, old-fashioned under-sleeve, gathered into a tight wristband. Maison Marnac is making full use of these new fancies. One model in a rather demure style with Quaker collar and cuffs, looked very fetching; a half-tunic effect was achieved by the godets placed on the skirt, the line being repeated on the bodice, where it forms a semi-bolero.

The Dolly Vardon Hat Shop. Graceful, romantic, Victorian even, but in every point attuned to the mode of the moment are the hats seen at the Dolly Vardon Hat Shop. They include large and small models for street, sport and afternoon, embracing the most severely simple types, and also the softer and more picturesque modes. But all express an air of refinement and beauty not seen in millinery for many seasons, and individuality is emphasized. The novelty shapes of the season are disclosed in the halo-turban, the mushroom-cloche, the bandeau-sailor, and new ideas again appear in the contrasting materials and colours combined in hats of every shape. Crowns are even more shallow than those of the winter and in many models brims are wide. Flowers are having a revival; feather, too, is again fashionable, while ribbon about the crown is seen in several attractive colour combinations. Besides these new hats, there is a charming collection of new "summer" dresses in "voile, muslin, organdie and print." All the frocks have the charming new lingerie touches of frills and bows, and tricky insets and are all very lovely and designed to flatter.

Whiteaway's have assembled together a very charming collection of voile afternoon dresses in the old-fashioned flower designs which are wonderfully dainty and always becoming. A great deal of attention has been given to the sleeves of both the frocks and coats of the new spring ensemble. Many of the gowns seen at Whiteaway's are sleeveless, and this applies, not only for those designed for sport and morning, but also those for afternoon wear. For the woman who likes colours there is a lovely model of voile in a flowered design of red and orange, and frills in a bolero effect and poplin is used for trimming. For more formal occasions there is a pink and white flower design on a background of black; this is also sleeveless, and a short coat of is worn with it. I also saw a very charming selection of new black hats just being unpacked, most of the shapes are small, though a few have brims of medium size. Bangkok, hemp, oatmeal and lacquered straw are used and are particularly brilliant in black. In this delightful display of millinery, a few novelties were conspicuous. A model in which printed crepe is used for the brim in combination with a felt crown looks very smart. The boret, which has done service for some time, is still seen, but smaller than ever. Whiteaway's new collection includes many of these in red, navy, black, white, yellow and beige.

Gordon's has truly been called the home of smart footwear. Colour is one of the most important considerations in connection with the new shoes. This season, in view of the vogue for black and white dresses, black will be more prominent in shoes than for some time; but there are now as many different leathers in black as in brown, so that, even if several pairs of shoes are to be bought, each may be distinctive and entirely different from the others. There is calf and matt kid, dull calf, ginec kid and matt kid, suede, patent leather, lizard, python, water snake, crocodile, frog-skin, roussette, sharkskin—a new variety, with fine, rough surface. The dull surfaced materials are the more fashionable, and matt kid or suede is often combined with a reptile skin. The black is generally relieved with white or other piping. I am told that Gordon's are expecting a large shipment of new season's shoes on Monday.

The Book Shop and Bible Depot has received a new and varied selection of books for boys and girls, which would make ideal gifts for any child going home. A good book is always an acceptable gift, and fairy tales and adventures are the best one can offer. Among the books for girls are "Twenty-six Stories for Girls" by Ethel Talbot, "A House Full of Girls" by Mrs. G. de Horne Vaizey and "The College Girl" by the same author. Stories for boys include "Coral Island" by R. M. Ballantyne, "The Settlers in Canada," by Captain Marryat and "Further Adventures of Robinson Crusoe" by Daniel Defoe. For the child just beginning to read, there are delightful stories such as "Stories of Robin Hood and his Merry Men," by O. M. Rutley, "Gift of the Sea," by Bontie Walker and "Sonny," by Lilian Lear.

Except for evening gowns, the smarter afternoon and longer type of "occasion" frocks, such as those destined for race meetings and garden parties, large floral motifs are being replaced by the small sprigged variety in crepe and marocain. They are a dainty note in dresses for ordinary morning and afternoon wear, or jackets worn over plain frocks by other designers.

DO YOU KNOW?

When mixing mustard use a little milk instead of water. It will keep moist for some time and not discolour or harden as when mixed with water. The milk in no way interferes with the flavour. Never trouble to grate chocolate which is to be used for cakes or cold sweet. Place the chocolate in the oven for a few seconds and it will become quite soft and can be easily creamed with the butter or beaten up with eggs or milk. Add vinegar to water when washing varnished paper as it revives colour and keeps flies away. A simple way to remove paint from the hands is to rub newspaper over the paint. You will find the paint is removed almost instantly. When backing pictures with brown paper moisten the paper with water before sticking it; this gives a taut surface when dry. After washing curtains hang them up at once, wet and allow to dry at the window. Pull them slightly from time to time to keep the shape.

Butcher blue tussore is a favourite sports theme with Louisboulanger, who includes a series of youthful country sporting modes for the first time in her collection. These are frequently defined in white, with short coloured jackets—blues and raspberry pinks striking good contrasts.

Easy waistlines are conspicuous in more sophisticated modes that sometimes define diagonally fitted movements outlining hip yokes. Two rounded skirt lines are followed in this clever designer's inimitable manner, with selvedge hems lending character to an unpressed section of the material below a depth of perpendicular tucks.

This style indicates a tendency for comfortable bell-shaped skirt lines in emerald green and dark green "ton sur ton" tartan plaid mousselines afternoon gowns.

Yokes in the backs of bodices tend towards easier fittings, also bishop sleeves. These sleeves are often tucked down the upper arm, but they are generally true to type, not sheer into armholes and with narrow frills round the wrists.

Another interesting sleeve is featured in a black and white spotted crepe dress, white Valenciennes lace being inserted between bands of the material at intervals until they stop above the elbow.

Lingerie collars, made to stand away from the neck at the back in miniature Medici fashion, are a striking innovation on patterned frocks, while capelets are repeated to supply graceful shoulder movements to a great number of afternoon and evening models. They are either made to tie at the side of a neckline or with sleeves and no ties at all.

A colour contrast is sometimes defined only in scarves and blouses. An emerald green scarf, for example, meets the case on a light pale green flamingo coat.

THE CHILDREN'S CORNER. JUST A LINE.

Said Betty: "I've washed out all Dolly's new frocks, And Woolly Bear's waistcoat and Gollivog's socks; So now, as it's fine (the sun's trying to shine!) I'll peg them all out on this neat little line."

But with 'phones on his head John peeped out from the shed: "Oh, mind my nice aerial, Betty," he said, "You forget I'm a wireless mechanic to-day. Do take all your tiresome old washing away!"

Cried Betty: "Well what's all the bother about? Let the clothes listen-in," she said "while they hang out!"

IS THIS YOUR NAME?

Ronald is an old Northern name, signifying "Powerful Judgment." It is absolutely bound up with history and romance, being derived from the two Teutonic words, "Regin" (Judgment) and "Wald" (Power), which also give us the familiar Reginald. Southern countries found it easier to drop the "v," making Reginwald into Reginald. Regin very soon again became Ren, or Ron, and we obtain Ronald and Ronald. This latter is the Scottish contraction. The direct source of Ronald is undoubtedly the name Rognvald, which is borne by a famous Jarl of the Orkneys. The whole series of names appears to have originated in the Latin "Regnum" (Royal power or authority).

SCIENCE FIGHTS FAT

through an important gland.

People used to think that excess fat came from over-eating or under-exercise. Some people starved, but with slight effect. Some became very active, still the fat remained. Thus medical research began the study of obesity. It was found that the thyroid gland largely controlled nutrition. One of its purposes is to turn food into fuel and energy. Fat people, it was found, generally suffered from an under-active thyroid. Then thousands of experiments were made with small amounts of thyroid, and countless reports showed that excess fat quite promptly disappeared. Science then realized that a way had been found to combat a great cause of obesity. Since then, this method has been employed by doctors, the world over, in a very extensive way.

Next came Marmola.

Then a great medical laboratory perfected a tablet based on this principle. It was called the Marmola prescription. Marmola was perfected 23 years ago. Since then it has been used in an enormous way—millions of boxes of it. Users told others about it. They told how it not only banished fat, but increased health and vigor. That is one great reason—perhaps a major reason—why excess fat is nowhere near as common as it was.

No Secrecy.

Marmola is not a secret prescription. Our book, enclosed with every bottle, tells exactly how Marmola acts. Also an explanation of results which so delight its users. No abnormal exercise or diet is required, but moderation helps. One simply takes four tablets daily until weight comes down to normal. Correct the cause. With loosened weight comes new vitality and many other benefits.

Do the Right Thing.

This is to people whose excess fat robs them of beauty, youth, health and vitality. Reduce that fat—combat the cause—in this scientific way. Do what so many people, for 23 years, have found amazingly effective. Marmola Prescription tablets are sold by all chemists, or if any difficulty in obtaining supplies, write to Gilman & Co., Ltd., 44, Des Vaux Road, Central, Hong Kong.

WORLD OF LIFE IN A SALTSPON.

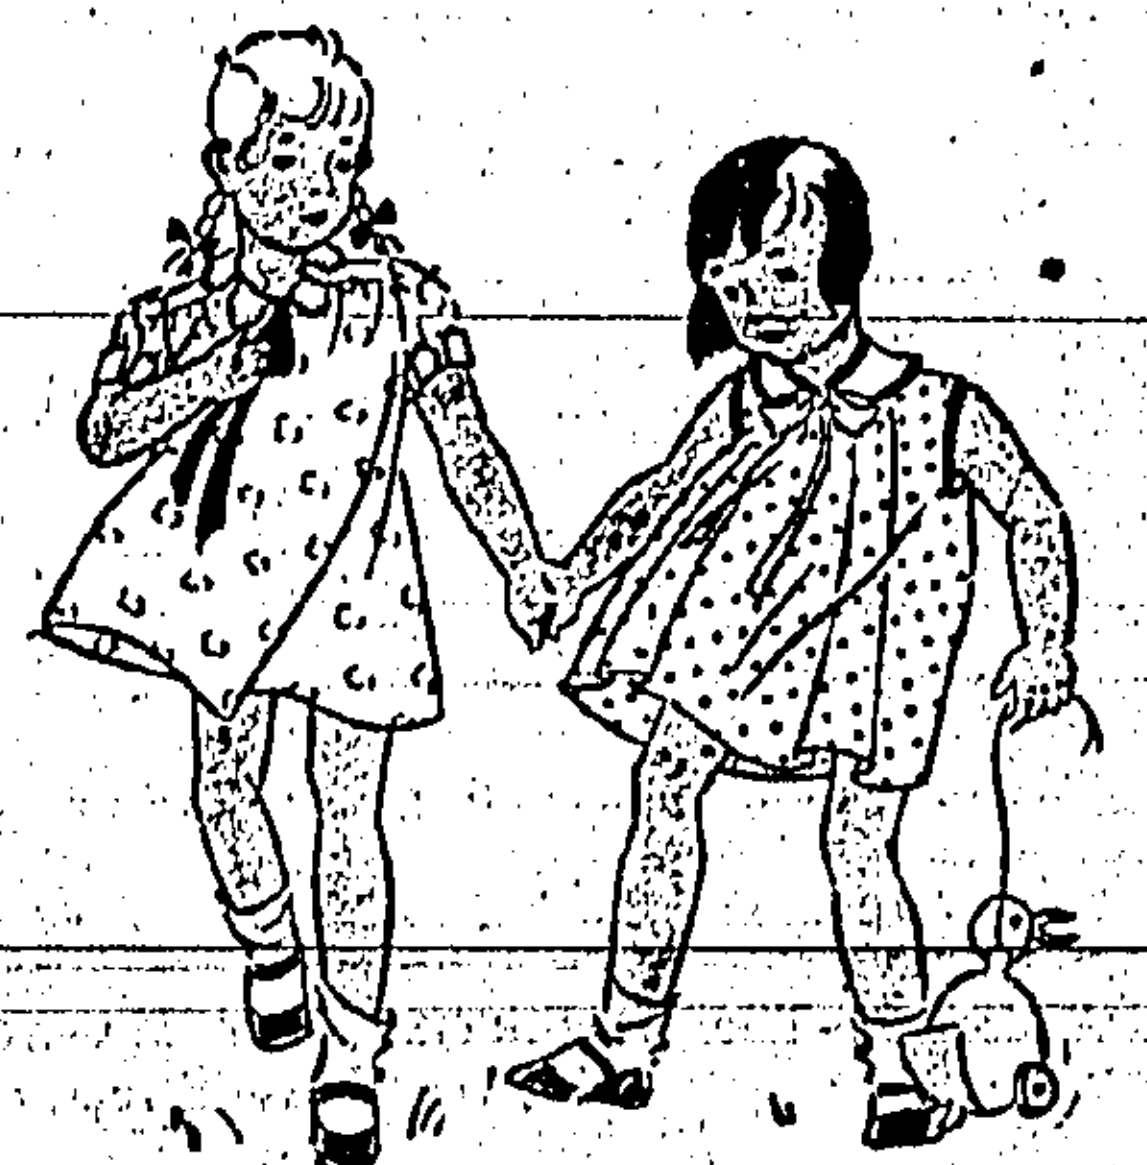

Go out into your garden and look at the flowers. They still and silent the mould seems! Yet do you know that if you took a saltspoonful of the soil there would be in it probably a thousand million living creatures!

Sir John Russell, the director of the Rothamsted Experimental Station, where the soil is carefully studied, tells us that men of science used to think there were 10,000,000 living creatures in a saltspoonful of soil. Then they came to the conclusion that there must be 50,000,000, and now they find that it is more like 600,000,000 to 1,000,000,000.

"THE SEA BAT."

The 10th degree of thrills is reached in the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer marine melodrama, "The Sea Bat," which opened last night at the Queen's Theatre. Fights above the ocean but principally underwater feature this original story by Dorothy Yost.The novelty of the "monoc" involved in the plot is one of its greatest charms. When two sponge divers, John Miljan and Nils Asther, fight underwater, their differences are made unimportant by the appearance of a monster sea bat, one of the two ton giant rays which infest tropical waters. More deadly than sharks, they crush divers in their immense blanket wings.Asther's death by one of these creatures starts the springs of a powerful plot revolving about Charles A. Bickford, an escaped convict in minister's clothing;
George Marion, her sudden father, superintendent of the concession;
John Miljan, villainous diver, and his unwholesome companions, Gibson Gowland and Boris Karloff.Bickford and Raquel lead in acting honours. Bickford is magnificent in the scenes where he is forced, for his own protection, to take the duties of his ministerial garb seriously. Miss Torres gives a splendid characterization of a white girl enmeshed in the superstitious voodoo worship of natives.

REMOTE CONTROL.

Edward Nugent hangs up the most unique talkie record in film-dom. He plays a part all through "Remote Control" without his voice ever being heard!In the new Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer feature, in which William Haines is starred and which will be showing at the Queen's Theatre on Sunday, Nugent is cast as the radio broadcasting station engineer. All his work goes on behind a sound-proof glass partition and all his conversation goes into a telephone.Mary Moran plays opposite Haines in the picturization of the stage play and the supporting cast includes Charles King, John Miljan, Polly Moran and J. C. Nugent.

"NIGHT."

Fate in the form of a national motion picture exhibition stepped in and changed the life career of Ralph Graves, one of the featured players in "Night," the Columbia all-talking aviation film now playing at the Central Theatre.His family had decided that he was to be an engineer. His great-grandfather, his uncle, his father and other relatives had been engaged in the engineering profession. Ralph was educated to follow in their footsteps. He graduated from the Case School of Applied Science in Cleveland, a metallurgical engineer. But his heart was not in his work; he had a yen to go into the movies. He decided that engineering would have to get along without one member of the Graves family.However, he did not find it an easy matter to reach his goal. It was during the Motion Picture Exposition in Chicago that he got his first screen opportunity. Universal Pictures was conducting a contest offering the leading male rôle opposite Violet Merisrou to the young man best qualified. Ralph Graves was selected. His first picture was "Men Who Have Loved Me."Graves achieved a substantial success, notably in D. W. Griffith's
"Dream Street." He confesses that he got a swelled head and began to lose his perspective. He then decided to quit the screen and resume an engineering career. For two years he worked with the Hughes Tool Company of Houston, and though he proved himself a success in his family profession, he could not forget the screen. His lure eventually brought him back to Hollywood.He entered the commercial end of pictures. Ralph wrote, directed, and acted in pictures for Bennett,
Warner Brothers and Columbia Pictures. His work in the following pictures has been given high praise—"Gold Digger," "The Eternal Woman," "The Glad Rag Doll" and "Submarine." Besides playing one of the featured rôles in "Night," he wrote the story. He is

"FOLLOW THRU."

Competition is the spice of love's and "Follow Thru," is the sugar of entertainment, plenty of competition, plenty of hilarious romance, and a real golf story that goes outdoors for its entertainment.Charles Rogers and Nancy Carroll head the brilliant cast of "Follow Thru," all Technicolor, which opens to-day at this theatre.There's fun galore in "Follow Thru," what with Zelma O'Neal, that lively little lady of "Varsity Drag" fame and her sidekick, the comic Jack Haley, and jolly Eugene Pallette, heading the fun force and there's excitement too in the big outdoor golf scenes, with woman fighting woman for a man's love."Follow Thru" is essentially a comedy, but the entertainment value is considerably heightened by the introduction of several snappy song numbers. They are: "Button up your Overcoat," "A Peach of a Pair," "I want to be bad," etc. Rippling with laughs, alive with catchy music, filmed entirely in Technicolor, based on the craze of the hour, golf, the picture was produced under the Showmanship eye of Schwab and Mandel, makers of "The Desert Song," "Queen High," etc.

The Bishop's Trousers.

A story of the late lamented Bishop Hoare of Hong Kong is told by Fleet-Surgeon W. E. Home, R.N., in "The Bishop's Trousers."
In Hong Kong thirty years ago, he says, the Bishop of Victoria, (drowned) later in a typhoon, a great loss to the Church, dealt with a well-known local Chinese tailor, who sent his bill, which the amused Bishop showed me, to "J. C. Victoria, Esq.," for making "one pair of race-horse trousers."

MASKED MEN OUTWITTED.

FIGHT IN LONELY POST OFFICE.By flinging a lead weight through a glass panel to give the alarm
Mrs. Harrison, wife of the sub-postmaster in Verdant-lane, Cat-ford, S.E., foiled masked and armed raiders who attempted to rob the post office.Before the men escaped there was a sharp struggle in the shop.The premises are part post office and part grocery store in a lonely lane. Mrs. Harrison was behind the post office counter, while her son Oswald was on the grocery side.Creeping in with black masks over the upper part of their faces, two men came up to the counters."Put them up," they ordered, covering Mrs. Harrison and her son with revolvers.

Mask Torn Off.

What followed was told to the Press by Mr. A. O. Harrison, the postmaster."My son had his back to the man when he pointed the revolver at him," he said. "He turned round, seized the man, tore his mask off, and wrestled with him."While they were fighting my wife grabbed a weight from the scales and hurled it through the glass panel of the side door in the room where I was sitting.Her action alarmed both men, and they rushed to the door. All three of us followed them, and dashed up the lane. A hundred yards away a car with its engine running was waiting. They leapt on it and disappeared.A description of the car and the raiders was telephoned to Scotland Yard and all units of the Flying Squad operating in S.E. London, warned by wireless, were soon scouring the area.Units of the new mobile force were posted at strategic points on main roads.

SHOULD MEN PLAY FEMALE ROLES?ELIZABETHAN DRAMA AT CAMBRIDGE.Had John Webster been born three hundred years later he would have made a fortune as the writer of film scenarios, writes a London dramatic critic.His "White Devil," performed by the Marlowe Dramatic Society at Cambridge, has moments of real poetry, it is true, but it is essentially film stuff.In the famous "conjuring scene," shorn of some of its details, he even makes use of a dumb-show flashback—a special device of the films.But a film director would have insisted on better continuity and on more consistency in the drawing of character. The sudden "compassion" of the Ingo-like villain, Flaminio, would require more explanation even in a film.

Unnamed Actors.

The actor who took the part (no names are ever printed in the programmes of this Society) acted with unfailing gusto, but he seemed overthrown in the end by Webster's quaint psychology. Yet you could write a history of Flaminio's gradual declension on the basis of his outburst to his mother, who,
by the way, was evidently familiar with Ophelia's mad-scene.Webster saw the world as a charnel-house, but his characters have the elements of life in them.
The obscurity of "The White Devil" is caused by the situations having been imposed on the characters.
This makes it a difficult task for the actors.

Women Played by Men.

At the Cambridge performance several of the undergraduates were remarkably good, notably the Cardinal Monticello, the Francisco de Medicis, and the Brachiano. The Vittoria Corombona was a handsome and statuesque lady, and displayed real power in the trial scene.But I cannot get accustomed to women's parts being played by men.
In Elizabethan days the boys no doubt passed muster. The Vittoria would have been splendid in a silent film—but when she talked.The performance as a whole was much too slow, and it was evident the play had not been fully reher-
sed. Much of it aroused laughter in the wrong place. This was partly due to Webster's quaint naïveté, but largely to the acting and production.

The "Mummers."

In the afternoon I looked in at a performance of Congreve's "The Way of the World," by the Mummers, a new Cambridge dramatic society that allows University women to play and engaged a professional producer, A. E. Filmer.The performance had style, and J. E. L. Birch's Mirabell, C. O.
McLaren's Witwoud, R. L. Dreeschfield's Petuland, and A. Cooke's Fainall would have been perfect if their speech had been a little less "natural." Kathleen Tower's Millamant and Sybil Hawkey's Mrs.
Marwood were above the average achievement of amateurs.The Mummers have made big strides in the three years of their existence. Some day the older dramatic societies of Cambridge will follow the lead of Mummers and allow women's parts to be played by women. It has been done for some years at Oxford. In drama, at any rate, there should be no obsolete questions of the equality of the sexes. Cambridge may continue in its refusal to recognise women students, but it must recognise them as indispensable to drama.ECONOMIC ACTION IN FIRE DESTROYS TOWN.

1,000 BUILDINGS GUTTED IN LITHUANIA.

Koenigsberg, April 1.—The Lithuanian town of Plungian was destroyed by fire to-day. A total of about 300 houses and 700 warehouses and office buildings fell a prey to the flames. The fire brigade was unable to fight the conflagration for hours owing to the fact that both the water-conduct and the motors of the fire-engines were frozen up. Most people in the town have lost everything. Whether any lives were lost is still unknown.

ALLEGED EMBEZZLEMENT IN CALIFORNIA.

CASE OF WOMAN HELD BY LOCAL POLICE.

Mrs. Jong Shee, whose extradition is being sought by the American authorities for alleged embezzlement of $225,000 in California, was again before Mr. Schofield at Central Magistracy yesterday, when Mr. T. Murphy, A.S.P., indicated that the American Consul had received information that an agent may be expected to arrive in Hong Kong on May 2. He added that the documents relating to the case had been passed from Washington to the State authorities in California.

His Worship observed that he had better remand the woman for another week.

Mr. F. H. Lossby, for the woman, remarked that the treaty was made with the Federal Government in Washington. He did not know they could delegate authority to a State. It was a rather curious procedure.

Mr. Murphy said that it was natural that the papers, affidavits, escort and identifier should come together to Hong Kong.

In again raising the question of bail, Mr. Lossby said that he thought it was a miscarriage of justice to keep his client in prison.

His Worship: I refuse to take the risk of decreasing the bail fixed in the sum of $75,000.

Another remand was granted for a week.

THREE MURDER ATTEMPTS ALLEGED.

STORY OF POISON IN TEA

Three attempts at murder were alleged against David Samuel Jones, a young labourer, of Bishop's Frome, when he appeared before the Bromyard (Herefordshire) magistrates, charged on remand with stealing a gun and cartridges. He was now accused of shooting at his wife Miriam and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Comfort Smith, with intent to murder, and with attempting to administer, or cause to be administered, poison or other destructive thing to his wife.

Accused's employer said that the gun was missed from the engine house.

Mrs. Comfort Smith said that in consequence of unpleasantness with her husband her daughter slept with her on Feb. 19. The next day they met accused in a lane near the house. He carried a gun and fired three shots.

Police-constable Hill said that when he was arrested Jones admitted stealing the gun, and said that he fired two shots to frighten his wife.

When the poison charge was proceeded with the magistrates upheld the contention of the prosecution that the wife was a competent witness, although Mrs. Jones said that she preferred not to give evidence.

Among the exhibits was a blue bottle labelled poison and marked "Inimic". Mrs. Jones said that her husband made tea for breakfast, and she poured out two cups. "I put mine to my lips, and it tasted peculiar and smelled tart. My husband did not touch his. I took mine to show mother, and it turned black." Afterwards her husband threw all the tea away, and told her it was a good job she had not drunk hers.

The prosecution stated that there was not enough poison in the bottle to kill a human being, but it was contended that an attempt to poison was made.

Mrs. Jones said that she would like to live with her husband again. He had told her that if she had taken the poison he would have taken some, too.

The defence suggested that it was a foolish attempt by accused to frighten his wife.

Accused was committed for trial.

SELF-PORTRAITS OF TITIAN.

REMARKABLE DISCOVERY BY LONDON COLLECTOR.

London, April 1.—Two self-portraits of Titian said to be of singularly high quality have been discovered by the London collector Mr. Frank Sabin, who bought them as unknown masters from Lord Ashburnham and Darnley respectively. Not until they were cleaned was the simultaneous discovery made which is unique in the history of art. Both represent the great painter in his later years, on the one he is seen alone and on the other together with his first teacher Sebastiano Zuccato.

"LOWERING DIGNITY OF WOMANHOOD."

BACHELOR JUDGE AND "BREACH" ACTIONS.

ENGAGEMENTS WITH A TIME LIMIT.

The view that breach of promise actions lower the dignity of womanhood was expressed at Sussex Assizes by Mr. Justice McCardie, who is a bachelor.

His Lordship, who was summing up in a claim brought by a jilted milliner's shop assistant, declared: "I think there is no more degrading occupation for a judge and jury than to estimate damages in such a case as this. This case illustrates the point which should be considered by the wise womanhood of this country. Is it desirable for a girl to enter into an engagement with a man without setting some limitation to the time during which the engagement shall last?"

Plaintiff was Miss Amy Violet Munday, aged 33, of Blatchington Road, Hove, and she sued a man of the same age, William A. Barber, of Kensington Place, Brighton, for breach of promise to marry. Mr. Pensotti, for Miss Munday, said that the couple were introduced in 1923 and fell in love with each other. Barber, then a green-grocer, was not in a position to marry, and it was agreed that they should wait for a few years.

Defendant eventually obtained a position in the Post Office telephones department, and in 1927 was sent to Dorking, where he remained for three months. He constantly wrote most endearing letters to the girl. At the end of one letter there were twenty-one marks indicating kisses, whilst in the next letter there were seventy-five.

Mr. Justice McCardie: That is an unusual number.

Counsel: I haven't had any experience, my Lord.

In July, 1929, proceeded counsel, Barber told the girl that he wanted to break off the engagement. He said, "I have met someone else. She is a widow living in Park Lane, with plenty of money. You have to break our engagement off."

Motor Car as Compensation.

Miss Munday said to Barber, "What about my eight years of wasted life?" In September, 1929, defendant offered to hand over to her his motor-car in compensation for the broken engagement.

The Judge: She would have taken the motor-car instead of the man?

Counsel: There was no chance of taking the man then, and they both considered she ought to have some compensation.

Miss Munday, added counsel, went to the garage where the car was supposed to be, and was informed that it had been taken away by Barber.

The Judge pointed out that some of the letters received by Miss Munday bore on the back the letters "S.W.A.L.K.," and he asked what they meant.

Miss Munday said that they meant "Sealed with a loving kiss."

His Lordship said that he had never heard of that before, and asked Mr. Pensotti if he had, and counsel replied, "Yes, my Lord."

"I suspected you from the beginning," commented Mr. Justice McCardie amid laughter.

In cross-examination Barber said that his mother claimed the car as he had borrowed money from her for it. He earned $2 10s. a week.

The jury awarded Miss Munday £15 damages. Judgment with costs was entered accordingly.

A NEW PLANET DISCOVERED.

AND CALLED "BA."

Turin.—The discovery of traces of a new planet of the solar system is claimed by Professor Lacchini, of the Pino Torinese Observatory.

This discovery was made by means of photographs.

"Ba" is the name provisionally given to the new planet.

Commenting on the report to the Nova Chronicle, Sir Frank Dyson, the Astronomer Royal, said:—

"Scores of new minor planets are discovered every year, but it is only rarely that planets of the size of Pluto [the discovery of which was announced on March 14 last year from the Lowell Observatory, Arizona] are located."

Professor A. C. de la C. Crommelin, president of the Royal Astronomical Society, said:—

"It is impossible to comment without further details of the discovery Professor Lacchini may have located only a minor planet, of which 165 were found last year."

CHRISTIANITY AND MODERN CHINA.

AN INAPPROPRIATE TEAM.

"Present-day movements in China" was the subject of an address at Manchester by Mr. William G. Sewell. The principal problems facing the future of the Chinese Republic, he said, were education and the change in the social life as a result of the conflict between old and new ideas. Christian schools had a wonderful opportunity if they accepted the educational system that had been laid down by the Nationalist Government. Such acceptance would not make any practical difference to Christian work. The young people had new ideas that did not fit in with the old customs, and Christian missions could help very considerably in adjusting such differences. He thought they could well afford to drop the old term missionary; it hardly fitted in with the work of the Christian Church as it existed to-day in the preparatory, secondary schools, and the universities. More than 80 per cent. of the Chinese Government had been trained in the Christian mission schools, and half of them were avowed Christians.

The seeds of Communism planted by the Russian Government during the time of their treaty arrangements with China had spread, and the executions of young Communists that were taking place in the attempt to stamp out the belief undoubtedly aroused sympathy among the people. It was impossible to say as to the future of this belief. There were those who thought Communism was worth dying for in the same way that Christians had died for their faith.

ORIENTAL RELIGIONS.

PROF. SOOTHILL'S VIEW.

At the National Free Church Council conference at Weston-super-Mare Prof. W. E. Soothill, Professor of Chinese at Oxford University, said that he regretfully failed to see any possibility of attempting to Christianise Hinduism or Buddhism or any other of the Oriental religions.

"It is in influence on public opinion, in a broader education, in the manifestation of the spirit of Christ, in true brotherliness and fellowship that the intellectual and spiritual atmosphere of the nations East and West can and will be changed," he continued. "Of course, the present stirring is disturbing. It is disturbing religiously, for it transforms some into Agnostics and Atheists as well as others into religion. It is disturbing politically, producing Gandhis and Sun Yat-sens. We need not be surprised at this any more than we need be surprised that while Gandhi reverences Jesus Christ, he rejects Christianity."

The medieval presentation of Christ, he added, was one of the great hindrances among the modern educated class of the Orient, even as it was among students in England.

ARE YOU A TWIN?

FACTS SOUGHT BY DOCTORS.

A London hospital wants twins—male twins, female twins and "mixed" twins—and as many twins as possible.

No age is specified but adults are preferred, and twins who have had sharply contrasting educational and other experiences will be specially welcome.

The post-graduate medical school of the Maudsley Hospital, Denmark Hill, S.E., is to conduct a scientific investigation into the physical and other characteristics of twins, and wants to get in touch with as many twins as possible.

"There is a recognised need for study of the subject," said the official at the hospital.

"The objects of the investigation are general, and any information about twins will be useful. One thing we particularly want to study is how far twins diverge according to different education and environment."

Forming Personality.

"Twins may be divided roughly into two classes; those who are identical in sex and other particulars, and those who are dissimilar. We have to discover among other things how far twins who are alike, but have been separated in childhood, may differ in consequence of varied conditions of upbringing."

"Twins are, of course, commonly very affectionate and unwilling to be parted, but cases have been known and differences have been noted, showing that environment may play a considerable part in forming personality."

Among the details upon which light may be shown by these studies are:

How twins vary—usually a kind compensating law seems to provide some mark whereby twins can be distinguished. For instance, often one is right-handed and the other left-handed.

How frequently twins are descended from the female side and how frequently from the male side—since twins almost invariably run in families.

To what extent twins share similar tastes in modes of thought and feeling. These conducting the research may have to travel occasionally to see twins. In the meantime as many twins as possible are asked to write to the hospital.

OXFORD DRESSES THEM IN PINK.

TO CELEBRATE A RUGBY VICTORY.

When day broke on a certain cold March morning the statue of James II. in the quadrangle of University College, Oxford, was found to have been bedecked during the night in pink pyjamas and wreathed with many garlands. On the head, instead of the crown, a domestic utensil had been placed. The statue of Dr. William Radcliffe, founder of the Radcliffe Infirmary, also in the Quadrangle, had been similarly decorated.

This prank followed the supper to celebrate the college Rugby team's success against New College in the final of the Inter-College Competition. During the festivities, it is stated, the rooms of one of the undergraduates were raided and left in a state of chaos.

LIQUOR SUMMONSES
FAIL.NO RECORD OF GENUINE LABELS.POINTED QUESTIONS BY COUNSEL.

The case in which the licensee of the Man Hing Loong firm was summoned for causing structural alterations to the warehouse without the written permission of the Superintendent of the Import and Export Office, and for possession of false revenue labels, was concluded before Mr. W. Schofield yesterday. The defendant was acquitted on both counts.

Mr. F. C. Jenkin, instructed by Mr. F. X. d'Almeida, was for the defence, the prosecution being in the hands of Mr. H. A. Taylor, of the Import and Export Office.

Mr. H. A. Taylor, in further statements yesterday, said he regarded the opening as a structural alteration in the sense that it was large enough for a full-grown man to pass through, and large enough also for liquor cases to be carried through. Furthermore, the opening was one which gave access into the premises. It was located at the foot of the staircase leading to the upper floors of the premises, where liquor was stocked.

Referring to the intervention of the Fire Department in the matter, Mr. Taylor said: "It seems to me incredible that any experienced fire officer would authorise a hole of this kind, and in case of fire would have blazing liquor running through the hole to the foot of the stairs leading to the upper floors of these two houses, No. 97 and 99."

Mr. Jenkin, cross-examined Mr. Taylor on the various points raised, which he criticised as irrelevant. "What is the idea of referring the learned Magistrate to the fact that a man could get, adding, 'I thought the second charge (of leaving the premises open) had been dropped.'"

Mr. Taylor: It is simply to point out that it is a structural alteration.

Obvious Purpose.

Replying to another question, Mr. Taylor said he was not suggesting that the hole was used for smuggling, but it appeared to him that such was the obvious purpose.

Counsel: Do you think it is quite fair for you to make that suggestion when you have deliberately withdrawn the charge of leaving the door open?

Witness: Yes, I do.

Counsel: Well, I cannot see eye to eye with you with regard to fairness. Do you wish to reinstate the charge or drop it?

Witness replied that he was not proceeding with that charge, as he had already dropped it. He denied that his statements were inspired.

Mr. Jenkin: Regarding your third point, have you any experience as a fire officer? What experience have you of fire prevention, experience as to the mode in which premises should be constructed with regard to fire prevention?

Witness replied he had had no such experience, but was suggesting the obvious.

Questioned with regard to the numbers on the disputed labels, which he said represented a difference in appearance from those issued by the Department, witness said his comparison was formed from an examination of numbers held by other dealers. The Department kept no records of the types of labels issued from time to time, and in the present case he relied also on the records of the printers for the issue in question.

Printer's Evidence.

Mr. E. L. Alves, Secretary of the Hong Kong Printing Press, was the next witness called.

Under cross-examination, witness said he joined the firm on May 2, 1927, and his evidence was based on what he had understood from other employees of the company. There had been a change in colour from a light green to a dark blue, made about two years ago. Witness had never examined or checked the labels himself.

Mr. Jenkin: The whole of the evidence you have given here this morning is a result of what you have been told?—Yes.

The engraver was then called and he said that he had been in the employ of the Hong Kong Printing Press for about two years and had had 15 years' experience as an engraver. When shown the labels on bottles of wine produced, witness stated that they were forgeries and pointed out many differences when compared with the labels which his firm printed for the Hong Kong Government.

HONG KONG STOCK
MARKET.CROUCHER & CO.'S DAILY REPORT.

A firmer tendency on the share market was noticeable at the close and most stocks were in good demand.

Banks and Unions changed hands at 2,000 and 630 but very few shares were done, prospective sellers holding out for higher rates. The Union dividend is due sometime in May and the return based on last year's distribution is nearly 7 per cent.

Wharves were wanted at 150 with sales at this figure and sellers now asking 160.

Lands changed hands at 84½ and 85 for the coming settlement.

Cements have been somewhat neglected of late and opened with buyers at 10½ at the close a brisk demand put the shares to 17.10 with business done at 17½ for June.

Underwriters were done in fairly large quantities at 4.35 to 4.45 and closed with buyers at 4.40.

Telephones changed hands at 39 and more shares are wanted.

Hotels were somewhat erratic shares being sold at 14.25 for the settlement in the morning and afterwards 14.50 cash.

Land, Crawford's had a rapid rise of almost a dollar closing with sales at 4.75.

Answering Mr. Jenkin, witness said he joined the firm in August, 1929, and knew nothing about the labels prior to that date.

Mr. Jenkin: Your only reason for stating that these labels, on the bottles you have examined are not genuine labels is that they have the differences you have pointed out, from the labels in use during your employment?—Yes.

Is there any record at all in the printing press of the types of labels issued previous to your employment?—I can't say anything about that.

Is there any record in the printing press, so far as you know, of the serial number of labels, issued?—No.

At the request of Mr. Jenkin, made earlier in the case, Mr. Taylor produced bottles which he said bore genuine labels issued in 1926. There was no record, however, of the labels at the time.

No Record Kept.

Mr. Jenkin remarked that it was a calamity for the Import and Export Department not to keep records of the labels issued from time to time. It was a calamity when they had to launch a prosecution such as the present case.

Mr. Jenkin objected to the labels produced by the prosecution being put in as evidence when they could not be proved to be genuine ones issued by the Import and Export Department.

Mr. Taylor mentioned that he would hand them to the engraver and ask his opinion about them.

Mr. Jenkin pointed out that it would be a waste of time to compare the old labels, which were stated to be genuine ones, with those found on the bottles seized on the defendant's premises, unless there was evidence to show that the labels on the bottles produced by the prosecution, were genuine.

Mr. Taylor remarked that he could call the manager of the Hong Kong Printing Press to see whether his employment went further back than the other two witnesses called from the firm. His difficulty was that the original designer had left the Colony.

After consideration, his Worship said that it seemed to him, on the first charge, the prosecution had not proved their case. There was no evidence that the alleged alteration was not there at the beginning.

The first charge was accordingly dismissed.

Mr. Jenkin raised an objection for a remand to call further evidence on the second charge, remarking that it would be a hardship on the defendant to have his legal advisers attend Court again. The Department should have seen the necessity, by reason of long practice, of having to prove their case.

Magistrate's Comment.

His Worship said he would like to comment upon the failure of the Department to keep copies of genuine labels issued.

Mr. Taylor remarked that forgeries of the labels had hardly cropped up before. They had had very little trouble in the past with these labels. There was nothing kept in the way of a pictorial record of the labels used.

His Worship said that, considering the absence of official copies of genuine labels issued before 1929, he must also dismiss the second charge. The defendant was then acquitted on both counts.

G.O.C.'S TRIBUTE TO VOLUNTEERS.FINE DISPLAY AT ANNUAL INSPECTION.GENERAL'S HINT TO GOVERN-MENT SERVANTS.

At the annual inspection of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps by Major General J. W. Sandilands, O.B., O.M.G., D.S.O. (General Officer Commanding), His Excellency expressed satisfaction with the companies on parade and said that there had been a distinct all-round improvement in the Corps since he first took over command in Hong Kong.

His Excellency also drew attention to the situation with regard to recruiting for the Corps, and said that, while a considerable number of new men had been recruited to take the place of those who had left, it was his belief that there were many young men, especially in Government employment, who could produce no sound reason or excuse for not joining the Volunteers.

The Corps paraded under the Commandant, Lieut.-Col. L. G. Bird, D.S.O.; O.B.E., Major H.B.L. Dowbiggin, and the Adjutant, Capt. W.H.G. Goater, D.S.O., M.C. (The Queen's Own Royal West Kent Regiment). There were 26 officers and 340 other ranks on parade, five officers and 55 other ranks being on leave.

Led by the Pipe Band of the Argyll and Sutherland Highlanders, and the Corps Band, the Corps marched down to Murray Parade ground shortly before the arrival of His Excellency the General Officer Commanding, who was accompanied by Col. C.R.U. Savile, D.S.O., O.B.E. (G.S.O.I.), Col. R.B. Cousins, D.S.O., (A.A. & M.C.G.), and Lieut. J. Baakervyle, G.O.C. (A.D.C.).

After the inspection, the units marched past His Excellency, and the Infantry, Machine Gun Troop, Armoured Cars, and other companies made a brave display.

The following companies were on parade:—Engineer Company (Capt. M.A. Johnson, M.M.); Battery, (Lieut. De Ville); Corps of Signals, (Lieut. J. H. Bottomley); M.G. Troop, (Lieut. A. H. Potts); Armoured Car Co. (Lieut. H. J. Williams); Scottish Company, (Capt. H. R. Forsyth); M.G. Company (Capt. E. J. R. Mitchell); Portuguese Company, (Capt. R. R. Davies); Medical Section, (Capt. E. R. Minnett).

G. O. C.'S ADDRESS.

It is a great pleasure for me to be in a position once more to carry out the Annual Inspection of the Hong Kong Volunteer Defence Corps. I would like to say straight away that I am very well satisfied with everything I have seen this evening, naturally including the Mounted Units which form a new feature on parade to me.

The Mounted Machine Gun Troop remind me of the far off days, some 30 years ago, when I served as a young officer in the Mounted Infantry in South Africa.

It is of course not possible for Volunteers to drill and handle their arms with the precision of Regulars, but it is always a matter of surprise to me how well Volunteers do. I am reminded that the only practice they can get before hand has to be done in their spare time.

It was a matter of great regret to me that owing to an accident I was not able to see more of the officers and men while they were out in camp, but I am sure that they all realize that I would have paid them frequent visits had I been able to do so. However, the training out of camp was witnessed on many occasions by members of my staff, who reported to me that really good sound work was being carried out.

All-round Improvement.

It is my considered belief that there has been a distinct all-round improvement in the H.K.V.D.C. since I first took over command in Hong Kong, and for this you, Colonel Bird, as Commanding Officer, deserve full credit, but I am sure that you will agree that due credit for this must also be given to Major Dowbiggin, who commanded during your absence on leave for six months, and also your new Adjutant, Captain Goater.

On an occasion such as this, it is neither possible, nor desirable, to speak at length; consequently I do not propose to make an exhaustive review of the work done throughout the year, which is more fitting for the written annual report of the Corps.

Government Servants and Volunteering.

I feel, however, that it is my duty to draw attention to the situation.

DOCKYARD PRESENTA-TIONS.POPULAR EXECUTIVES
LEAVING FOR HOME.

A farewell concert was held at the Naval Dockyard Recreation Club, on April 8 in honour of Surgeon-Commander F. G. Hunt, R.N., M.B., and Mr. E. E. Bonham, M.I.E.E. Both gentlemen, who are exceedingly popular, are returning home after completing three years' service here.

Mr. W. Bickford occupied the chair and all of the department heads attended.

Commander Hunt was presented with a beautiful travelling trunk by Mr. S. R. Tiekner on behalf of the officers and staff. On behalf of the Dockyard Club, Mr. Bonham was presented with an opium stove and China tea set. The services of both gentlemen were warmly eulogised by the speakers and both responded feelingly.

The concert, which followed, was thoroughly enjoyed, encores being the order of the evening.

with regard to recruiting for the Volunteer Corps. It is true that the Corps has touched the 600 mark, which is an increase of 90 over last year, and when it is taken into consideration that many men have left for one reason and another, it means that a considerable number of new men have been recruited. But I still believe that there must be many young men, especially in Government employment, who could produce no sound reason or excuse for not joining the Volunteers, which represents the only potential reserve for the Regular Army in the defence of the Colony.

It has always been a matter of surprise to me how difficult it is to arrive at any conclusion as to how many men there are in the Colony, who are eligible to join the Volunteers, but I still believe that the census which has recently been taken will provide information such as will make it possible to arrive at the number of those who are evading their obligations to the British Empire.

Tribute to the Corps.

In conclusion, I would like to pay a tribute to all the officers and other ranks who are on parade this evening; not only am I satisfied with their work, but I, as the man who is responsible for the defence of Hong Kong, appreciate their keen sense of duty, which is sufficient to cause them to devote a considerable amount of their leisure hours towards making themselves efficient in their military duties.

CORRESPONDENCE.

[All letters intended for publication must be accompanied by the name and address of the writer, not for publication, unless so desired, but as evidence of good faith.—Ed.]

"GIVE THEM AIR."

[TO THE EDITOR OF THE "HONG KONG DAILY PRESS."]

SIR,—There was recently a big Chinese meeting about the treatment of small-pox cases in the Colony, and, as it is too recent to need any recalling, I shall not touch upon the matter. There is another subject which I want to bring up and I trust it will attract the attention of the Chinese authorities, who, it is hoped, will see what can be done in the matter. It is the way sick Chinese babies are taken to the doctor's or to hospital.

A few days ago, I was standing outside one of the Chinese hospitals in Causeway Road when I saw a woman coming out with a baby strapped to her back. Now this method of carrying a sick child is bad enough, but to make matters worse, the woman had a quilt thrown over the child, who was thus shut off from the fresh air it needed.

Rapid strides are being made by certain sections of the Chinese community as far as hygiene is concerned, but it is deplorable that many of them are still in absolute ignorance as regards the vital necessity of fresh air, not only for patients, but also for normal people.

One argument advanced by the Chinese of the older school is that fresh air or "wind" as they call it, is fatal in certain diseases. How to show them that this is a very wrong view to hold is difficult but it is to be hoped that institutions like the Tung Wah Hospital will see that people are instructed in this matter. To do so would mean much to the community in general and to the poorer classes in particular.—Yours, etc.,

FIRES AT CANTON.

FOUR LIVES LOST.

[FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.]

CANTON, April 9. Two disastrous fires broke out in Canton during the past two days, resulting in the loss of four lives and completely destroying two buildings.

The first fire occurred on Siu Sun Street in a wood-shop late last Tuesday evening, while the second had its origin in the Tak Chuan Restaurant, on Yuen Cheung Street, early yesterday morning.

The wood-shop on Siu Sun Street was completely demolished. The occupants, a family living upstairs and several who were sound asleep, and were entrapped, the heavy smoke and fire blocking every means of escape. They were so severely burned that four of them succumbed the following day in the city hospital.

The Canton Fire Brigade fought the fire with great valour, but they had to work fully an hour before they could get it under control.

The second fire was of a less disastrous character, that no lives were lost. The fire-fighters were able to bring it under control with greater ease than the fire of the previous night, but, nevertheless, the greater part of the building was destroyed before it was extinguished. One jeki who was sleeping upstairs had to jump into the street to safety, sustaining slight injuries to both hands and legs.

HONG KONG, APRIL 10, 1931.

LITERARY HONG KONG.

How often people say that "a good book ought to be written about Hong Kong." There is subject matter enough for novels, histories and authoritative works on the zoological, botanical and a dozen other aspects of the Colony. A DICKENS or a THACKERAY, an EDWARD GIBSON or a GILBERT WHITE would find all the material he needed ready to hand. We have a distinguished novelist in our midst, and most of us feel that sooner or later a book about Hong Kong will take its place among the classics of our language.

That there is literary ability of a high order in the Colony is shown by the number and the quality of the monthly publications produced without any idea of commercial gain by those who feel that they have something worth saying.

There are five such periodicals in front of the writer. The oldest of them is, we believe, The Rock, the official organ of the local Roman Catholic community. Well printed and well illustrated, it contains things of interest to all educated people. There is much about China, and there are shrewd comments on local and world events. Many of the contributors are members of the Jesuit Fathers' Mission—most of whom seem to come from Ireland—and the pages reflect the kindly wisdom of that great Order. There are things with non-Roman Catholics will disagree, but much more which they "never realised."

The April number of St. John's Review is of a more strictly devotional nature, and the literary merit of all the articles stands at a high level. The fair and penetrating study of "Christianity and Buddhism," by the Rev. G. K. CARPENTER, B.Sc., M.A., and "The Scientist's Approach to God," by E. A. GAUNT, will interest thoughtful people, and those with a feeling for history will enjoy the article by VIOLET T. KEMP on a namesake of the authoress, MARGERY KEMP, an English mystic of the thirteenth century.

No. 1 of Volume II. of The Hong Kong Naturalist, makes the announcement that Mr. A. H. CROOK has resigned from the joint editorship, which is now in the hands of Dr. G. A. C. HENRIKSSON and Major H. P. W. HUSTON. Of Mr. CROOK, an editorial note states:—"During his twenty-eight years' residence in Hong Kong Mr. CROOK became the court of appeal on all matters relating to the Natural History and Folk Lore of the district. A widely travelled man, a student of all things Japanese and Chinese, he was possessed of an unusually charming personality. As a consequence his society was always sought after, and his lectures were invariably popular. His work on behalf of local education was officially recognised by the award of the O.B.E. in the 1930 New Year's Honours' List. Much of the initial support given to our journal was due to his indefatigable efforts on its behalf."

The coloured plates by A. M. HUSTON are works of art, and while the true book lover hates to tear out anything, we have no doubt many of these pictures of local birds will be duly framed by ornithologists. Seaweeds, Molluscan shells, the Chinese Bulbul, Photography, Kowloon Waterworks and local orchids are some of the subjects of articles. Bound volumes of the Hong Kong Naturalist must make a charming addition to any library, and the work is in the true tradition of the "Natural History of Selborne." Dr. HENRIKSSON is also responsible for "Occasional Notes of the Hong Kong Horticultural Society." This is a less ambitious production than The Naturalist, but the spirit of the real plant lover pervades its pages, and there is practical advice for our gardening enthusiasts. It is a new publication and we take this opportunity of wishing Dr. HENRIKSSON every success with his venture.

Most of our leading schools produce a periodical, and it is a very exacting person who cannot find something of interest in a school magazine. The Chimes (No. 2, of Peal XXIV.) is no exception, and while one cannot say that The Chimes is ahead of all rivals, such as The Yellow Dragon, it is a thoroughly good little production, and is no doubt received with real pleasure by the Old Boys. The great test of a school magazine is whether it can keep the interest of those who have left. The importance of this aspect needs no stressing, and The Chimes keeps its eye on what former pupils are doing out in the world.

It is always difficult to recognise the prophet in our midst and it may be that literary critics of the future will see twentieth century Hong Kong as a nest of classical writers, and first editions of our local publications will be the desire of collectors and fetch prices undreamed of by the authors.

HITCHES IN THE FIVE YEAR PLAN.

Home papers to hand comment freely on the recent proceedings in Moscow against the so-called Mensheviks. It was a mock trial, and, as might have been expected, the unedifying proceedings were recorded for posterity by the film camera. Most of the evidence, which aimed at exposing the machinations of the exiled Mensheviks and the Labour and Socialist International, was ludicrous; the crediting of the ineffective Russian Socialist émigrés and the Labour and Socialist movements of Europe with interventionist aims will deceive no one but a Communist.

This, however, was merely what the Bolsheviks would call the ideological setting. The real motive behind the trial and the sentences was very much like that behind the court-martial of our own Admiral Byrd. There have been hitches in the carrying out of the Five-year Plan, people have gone short of food, administrators have bungled. It would be dangerous to admit that the Bolsheviks could make such errors. Scapgoats must be found, and when found must be tarred with the dirtiest sort of tar, that of being believers in ordinary democratic Socialism. A glance through the "confessions" on which the indictment was framed should convince the most sceptical that for once the purely materialist explanation of statecraft holds good. A high official "confessed" that his aim was to cause an increase of the price of foodstuffs, which would lead to the non-fulfilment of the instructions of the Government for an increase of real wages, and that he had made the workers go short of eggs and butter. Another "confessed" that he persistently sent industrial commodities to the very districts in which they were wanted least. Another, a member of the Supreme Economic Council, "confessed" that he and his friends deliberately slowed down the rate of national production of coal, oil, steel, building materials, and also upset the currency. Indeed a certain study of the crimes imputed to the "Mensheviks" would give a very good picture of the weak spots in the Soviet economy. But it is a little too much to be expected to believe that all these administrative failures are the work of enemies of the Republic.

"What! You want some money? Why, I gave you five pounds yesterday." "Yes, dear; but I bought a new hat with it." "Good heavens! Does money always go to your head like that?"

London's £1,750,000 Hotel.

The complete cost of the new Dorchester Hotel in Park-lane, which opens on April 20, is £1,750,000. That is said to be the highest figure for any London hotel and no London hotel of such size has been built in so quick a time.

Better Times for Babies.

All those who bemoan the frivolity, the short skirts, the lipstick, cocktails and pillion-riding of the young woman of to-day ought to be somewhat disconcerted by some official figures. These show that babies do not die at the rate they did in the old days of long skirts, staying-at-home and much cradle-rocking. The much lauded Victorian mother, on the whole, knew less about keeping babies healthy than the young woman of to-day does.

No Eyes, But They See.

A blind girl who has recently been appointed as a shorthand-typist in a Whitehall Government office is the first to occupy such a position. That the blind should be shorthand-typists is due to a clever Braille shorthand machine which enables the user to write at a speed of 100 words a minute. Of the 30,000 registered blind persons in England 38,000 are unemployed by reason of additional infirmity of old age.

No Subject for Jokes!

An actor walked from the stage door towards his motor-car. But, as he walked, he was attacked by a woman, who struck him with fist and umbrella. This happened last month in London. The actor, Mr. Ernie Lotinga, had bronched on the stage a subject which, apparently, is taboo to some minds. Mr. Lotinga thus explained the incident:—"The lady said she would teach me to make fun of mothers-in-law. She objected to my rôle, in which I try to trip up a mother-in-law with a banana skin."

Looking Back 25 Years.

The frank dinners of London are silly and extravagant enough, but, thank goodness, London has seen nothing quite so bad as the baby dinner which took place in Baltimore the other evening. Mrs. Alexander Brown's magnificent ballroom was turned into an immense nursery. The men guests came in knickerbockers, the women in short frocks. The hostess's daughter, who has just "come out," entered walking in a gingham, escorted by a friend to a get-up of a negro nurse. After tiring of dragging wooden horses and stuffed woolly lambs about the room, wheeling hoops, playing with mechanical toys, and blowing tin trumpets, the lunatic hordes revelled in "Here we come gathering nuts and may," and other juvenile songs and games. They are still at large, though America has plenty of asylums. Hong Kong Daily Press, April 10, 1906.

Looking Back 50 Years.

Sir John and Lady Samuel, accompanied by Captain Francis, A.D.C., and Dr. Eitel, went off from the Murray Pier in the Government steam-launch shortly before twelve o'clock at noon yesterday, and embarked on board the Messageries Maritimes Djennah (Captain B. Baron) en route to England. A large number of ladies and gentlemen assembled on board the steamer to bid good-bye to the departing voyagers and a kindly farewell was said by each. His Excellency seemed to be in the highest spirits and had a happy joke or two to fire off at the last moment. Shortly after twelve o'clock the vessel cast off from the buoy and steamed slowly through the harbour on her homeward voyage. Hong Kong Daily Press, April 10, 1881.

JAPAN'S PREMIER PROBLEM.

MR. HAMAGUCHI'S LIKELY SUCCESSOR.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Tokyo, April 9. Owing to the weakened condition of Mr. Hamaguchi, Prime Minister, following an operation which was performed on the 5th inst., the belief is growing that the resignation of his Premiership is merely a question of time.

A likely successor is either ex-Premier Wakatsuki, who headed the Japanese delegation to the London Naval Conference last year, or the octogenarian ex-Cabinet Minister, Baron Yamamoto.

The possibility of the Seiyukai (Opposition) replacing the present Minsaito Cabinet is practically nil, although the prestige of the Government has been shaken by its failure to obtain the passage of certain Bills during the recent session of the Diet, and also by the revelation that the revenues during the fiscal year were overestimated by Yen 124,000,000, leaving a deficit of Yen 48,000,000.

Other possible candidates for the post of Premier are the Foreign Minister, Baron Shidehara; War Minister, General Ugaki; Minister for Home Affairs, Mr. Adachi; and Minister for Railways, Mr. Egi.

Latest Medical Examination.

The latest medical examination of Mr. Hamaguchi continues to hold out the hope that he will be able to leave the hospital about April 20, but it is anticipated that it will probably take a further month or six weeks before he has recovered sufficiently to walk about.

MAJESTIC HOTEL, SHANGHAI.

COUNCIL'S STATEMENT TO RATEPAYERS.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

SHANGHAI, April 9.

The Municipal Council has issued a statement to the ratepayers on the eve of the annual meeting defining its attitude relative to the proposed purchase of the Majestic Hotel site for the purpose of a civic centre, which suggestion the Council decided to oppose on the ground of costliness and unsuitability from the standpoint of location, whereas a real urgency for a communal lung exists in the congested northern districts, where open spaces are badly needed.

KING GEORGE'S HEALTH.

RECOVERY EXPECTED IN A FEW DAYS.

Rugby, April 8. It was stated at Windsor Castle to-day that there was a slight improvement in the King's condition. Although His Majesty remained in his room he was not confined to bed.

The King's Physician, Lord Dawson, again drove to Windsor Castle to-day and saw the King, together with Sir Milesom Rees, laryngologist, and Dr. Darty of Windsor.

To-day's slight improvement is regarded as a favourable sign following on the slow but satisfactory progress recorded yesterday, but if this improvement continues, as anticipated, it will still require two or three days before a restoration to normal health can be expected.

IRAQ AIR FORCE.

FIVE GIPSY MOTHS' AND PUSS MOTH.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

London, April 9. An Air Force was born yesterday. Painted white with the national markings green, white, red and black, five Gipsy Moth biplanes followed a Puss Moth monoplane from the Hatfield Aerodrome for Paris en route to Iraq.

The monoplane is piloted by a member of the British Air Force, Flight-Lieutenant Carter, who has been lent to the Iraq Government for three years.

The five biplanes are piloted by Iraq officers who have undergone a Royal Air Force training. They speak English fluently, and are attired in khaki uniforms of the British Army pattern with the cap formerly worn by the British Flying Corps.

The Puss Moth is for King Feisal's personal use, and the Gipsy Moth machines are fitted with bomb-racks, cameras, and wireless, to form the nucleus of the Iraq Air Force.

STARTLING AFFAIR IN SHANGHAI.

DARING ATTEMPT TO ABDUCT MILLIONAIRE.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

SHANGHAI, April 9.

The residential district in the International Settlement was startled this morning when a gang of armed kidnappers made a daring attempt to abduct the multi-millionaire landowner, Li Ching Mei, brother of Li Ching Fong, a former Minister to the Court of St. James's in pre-Republican times.

Li Ching Mei was proceeding home when the Russian chauffeur slowed down on seeing a wheelbarrow pushed across the path of the car.

Simultaneously the kidnappers, with drawn revolvers, surrounded the machine.

The chauffeur, instantly sizing up the situation, drove off at full speed.

The gangsters, baffled, fired at the retreating car, wounding Li Ching Mei's Russian bodyguard and shattering the windshield.

The chauffeur's face was cut by splintered glass, but he bravely drove on, while the bodyguard stood up and returned the fire. He was hit again and fell into the roadway, and was taken to the hospital in a dying condition.

The gangsters seized a nearby car and drove off.

Hitherto, no arrests have been made.

It is learned that two previous attempts had been made to abduct Li Ching Mei, who is leaving Shanghai to-morrow for an unknown destination.

(From Our Own Correspondent.)

A Russian bodyguard was critically wounded by a gang of kidnappers who fired a fusillade in a daring attempt to abduct Lord Li Ching Mei, son of Li Hung Chang, the famous Manchu Viceroy, near the Red Cross Hospital, French Town.

Li Ching Mei escaped unscathed. The thugs fled in a waiting car. This is the third attempt to kidnap Li Ching Mei, the previous two being frustrated by loyal watchmen.

The Russian bodyguard, who was hired only a week ago, is not expected to live.

Sir George Schuster said that chaos-like that in China would ensue from any attempt to juggle with the exchange, and urged the meeting not to ask the Government to wreck the future of India by asking them to do something they knew to be wrong.

PORTUGAL POLITICAL SITUATION.

MADEIRA RISING HAS NO REACTION IN LISBON.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LISBON, April 8.

The Wednesday afternoon revolt in Madeira had no reaction in Portugal, which is quiet, although the streets of Lisbon are being actively patrolled and the capital is seething with rumours.

FRANCO-ITALIAN NAVAL AGREEMENT

EMPHATIC SPEECH BY FIRST LORD OF ADMIRALTY.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

LONDON, April 8.

"I cannot and will not believe, after the agreement we reached in Rome and Paris, secured only by the hearty co-operation and goodwill of the principal State officers whom we met in both capitals, that the agreement should now be allowed in any way to suffer," declared Mr. Alexander, the First Lord of the Admiralty, in a speech at Hall.

"We shall work to the utmost to assist in consummating the agreement."

He said that the British Government desired to consummate the agreement by a legal treaty, thereby securing, firstly, the removal of a real handicap to a free, full and frank discussion of disarmament at the World Disarmament Conference at Geneva; and, secondly, that the comparative lack of Franco-Italian understanding would be substituted by closer and more cordial relationships.

ANGLO-GERMAN DISCUSSIONS.

GERMAN MINISTERS TO VISIT CHEQUERS.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

RUGBY, April 8.

After consultations between the Foreign Office, London, and at Brighton, Lissieux, the Black Forest, and Bavaria, where Mr. Arthur Henderson, Mr. Ramsay MacDonald, Dr. Brüning and Dr. Curtius, respectively, are holidaying, the date for the visit of Dr. Brüning and Dr. Curtius to Britain has been finally fixed for June 5 to June 9.

It is explained that the idea of this visit originated from the "conversations" between Mr. Henderson and the German Ambassador in London last March, when it was informally suggested that as the British Prime Minister had had frequent "conversations" with the statesmen of other countries, a meeting between Mr. Ramsay MacDonald and Dr. Brüning, who had never previously met, would be acceptable as affording an opportunity of discussing questions of mutual interest.

The German Ministers would arrive in London on June 5, and spend Saturday and Sunday at Chequers. There would be a banquet at the German Embassy on Monday to the British Government and the Corps Diplomatique would return to Berlin on June 9.

Courtesy Visit of British Fleet.

The proposal of the British Government to send the British Fleet as a courtesy visit to German ports has been heartily welcomed by the German Government and the naval authorities. No date has yet been fixed for the visit, which will be the first since the war, but it is expected that the Fleet will visit Kiel or Wilhelmshaven.

Why Date Question Was Left Open.

The visit which the German Chancellor and the Foreign Minister, Dr. Brüning and Dr. Curtius, will pay to London, has been fixed for June 5 to June 9.

Although the invitation extended to them was accepted some little while ago, the question of the date was at the time left open, owing to the difficulty of finding a period which would not conflict with the existing engagements of visitors or of the British Foreign Secretary and the Prime Minister. This difficulty was overcome to-day, when it was found that June 5 was the earliest mutually convenient date.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Date of Visit Definitely Fixed.

LONDON, April 8. Reuter learns that the visit of Dr. Brüning and Dr. Curtius to England has not been fixed for between June 5 and 9.

GRAF ZEPPELIN.

BRITISH EXPERTS IN TRIP TO CAIRO.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

FRIEDRICHSHAVEN, April 9. British experts are strongly represented on board the airship Graf Zeppelin, which departed for Cairo at 4 o'clock this morning. The 28 passengers included Commander Booth of the R.100, and Colonel Gossage, British Military Attaché at Berlin.

Keeping in form is one of the secrets of health and happiness in Hong Kong. Exercise and sports are only too well known as to their value in producing the necessary fitness required in these strenuous days. But with it all the system must have adequate nourishment.

The process of manufacture used exclusively for "Ovaltine" is unique. All the goodness so abundantly contained in these wonderfully invigorating and health-building products of Nature is preserved totally unimpaired in "Ovaltine".

Every particle of "Ovaltine" is nourishment. One cupful contains more nutriment than 3 eggs or 12 cups full of beef tea. Not only is this choice health-giving food easily and completely absorbed into the system, but it aids the digestion of several times its weight of ordinary food. This greatly increases the nutritive value of all other foods forming part of the dietary.

Every member of every home—young and old alike—should drink this incomparable and delicious food beverage in place of tea, coffee and other mealtime beverages. Drink it also last thing each night to ensure unbroken and refreshing sleep.

CRICKET CLUBS AND PLAYERS.

EFFECT OF RUGBY ON THIS SEASON'S MATCHES.

WEEKLY REVIEW BY R. ABBIT.

The Civil Service were at home to the University on Saturday last, and each side were playing their penultimate game. The visitors won, but, while doing full justice to their keen play, they were lucky in so much as they had their full side out, while the Civil Service were without two of their good bats in Griffiths and MacClellan. The Civil Service could shed two bowlers rather than a bat, and that's why their two ruggers men are good hats! It seems to me that the match would probably have gone the other way had they been able to turn out, for apart from Sayer and Richardson their batting absolutely broke down as usual. Anderson and Baker certainly kept an excellent length on a difficult wicket. Set with seventy-nine to get to win, the University had some shocks. Anderson was early caught by Evans at second slip early on, but then Ride and Rodrigues put things on a better basis. The pitch, curiously enough, had rolled out into quite a good one. However, when Hamilton yoked the former in the course of a rather expensive over, things began to happen. Shillman was soon caught at deep-off, while Baker, bowling now from the South end, beat Rodrigues and Sany in quick succession. Redmond kept his end up, however, and the remaining runs were hit off, and the 'Varsity had won by five wickets. Sayer bowled an over when the match was won and persuaded both Redmond and F. R. Zimmer to hit over the pitch of the ball in an attempt—it appeared—to lay out a race-pony.

Ups and Downs at Kowloon.

This farewell match to Brace last Saturday and Sunday produced a lot of very cheerful—if not very skilful cricket. The Married led on the first knock by fifty runs, but on the Sunday they faded a bit and the single men pulled it off by four wickets. I am told that their fielding cost the Married the game. Baffling first, Brace and F. W. S. Smith got into the thirties but the former was hardly at his best. Loyal put up the best score of the match with a cheerful (if unexpected at times) innings of sixty-one. Hung had four for fifty-four but no one else did much, though Skinner cleaned up two for five in a couple of overs.

Dropped Catches.

Mackay might have been caught twice, and Skinner once, in Loyal's first over, and thus extenuated, they scored between them fifty runs. Ernie Fincher then batted through the rest of the innings, but his thirty-one, not out, was closely run by extras, twenty-seven. Burnett got nineteen. Teddy Fincher is evidently dead out of form still, as he only got a couple, and though he got twenty-three not out in his second knock, it is clear he is stale. With an Interport possibly looming in November he will do well to cut out all ball-games this summer and go swimming! Smith, George Lee, and Brace alone did much in a poor second innings of a hundred and twenty-eight for the Married, though Chadwick's three for eleven were the only figures noticeable. The first five bats on the Singles side settled the matter and it was just as well as there was not much to come. Mackay again batted well for forty-eight. E. F. Fincher got one less, while Hung, Skinner and Teddy Fincher all got into the twenties.

A Good Wicket.

Throughout the game the wicket played very well, and apparently many of the batsmen got themselves out. Smith got runs in both knocks but I doubt if he is really a sound bat. Ernie Fincher showed some signs of his former capability, but he was not very confident. Carr did his best behind the wickets, and pumped a couple of men, but he has had little practice lately. Mackay is definitely coming on as a stumper but he has a long way to go yet. Finally, I would express my gratitude to my kindly correspondent who sent me notes of the match.

This Ruggar Question.

There is no doubt about it that the claims of Rugby football have had a good deal to do with the unsatisfactory season which we have had. I spare my readers any elaboration on the fixtures question. But there is no doubt that the ability to turn out the same eleven Saturday after Saturday has a good deal to do with success in the League. Take the case of the University. They have turned out practically the same team for the whole season. And it isn't a good one. Anderson has done well with the bat, and so have Ride and Rodrigues, though not consistently. But there the batting ends. Baker (it is an "a" and not an "e") I am told officially and anyway that's how he spells it on his exam papers! can bowl very usefully if the wicket helps him a bit, as he has a shade of leg turn. Anderson has improved greatly as a bowler and has a bit more pace with an off turn. Once Normanbhoy learns to control his length and direction entirely he will be really good, as he spins the ball a lot. But, I repeat, they are not a good side. But with no Ruggar enthusiasts bouncing in and out of the eleven they have pluggled placidly away, and have won three, drawn two, and lost only one of their six engagements.

A Fine Game.

Let me make it quite clear that I am not decrying Ruggar. It is one of the most manly games there is, and is a splendid test of character as well as of physical fitness. And inevitably it attracts the good all-rounders. I do not for one moment blame the cricketers who play Ruggar. They are quite right. "Rejoice, oh young man, in the days of thy youth!" Ruggar, over about twenty-eight is a mug's game here. What I am interested in, however, in seeing our local cricket go smoothly.

One Thing or the Other.

The only solution I can see is that the various skippers should make their people select their game at the beginning of the season. No doubt several Ruggar men are better than those who would play in their place when they are absent. But is it fair to ask your keen, if less expert cricketer to stand by and wait and see if the better cricketer wishes to play Ruggar or not? I say it is not. And even if he will do it—and many will—you still get the fact that the team is chopping and changing about all the time. And it demoralizes the others. I know that last Saturday at least four of the Civil Service team turned out when they would rather have been elsewhere (it was on a whole holiday in the middle of the Easter Vacation!), and it was not particularly pleasant to find that there were two most necessary bats away. Nor will it be particularly pleasant for the two men who did turn out and find themselves dropped in the K.C.C. match to-morrow—if it comes off. I may harp on the subject too much. But with, I admit, a good few exceptions, I have seen as much of League cricket here as most people. I had to run a team in the dark days of 1915-1917 when one looked, not for cricketers, but for men who would come and make one of the side! And, in my opinion, cricket has never been in such a bad way as now.

A Turning Point.

It seems that we have come to a turning point in the history of cricket in the Colony. There have been giants in the game. They directed it and on the impulse thus given cricket has run along. But the wheels are beginning to slow up. What worries me is that no one seems to care a curse this year. No one ever does anything very definite. Surely some central board of control is needed! To me, it seems that the League Committee, which is, I believe, or certainly should be, an elected body represent-

MIXED DOUBLES RESULTS.

TO-DAY'S MATCHES.

Only a couple of ties in the Mixed Doubles and one in the Handicap Singles "B" were decided yesterday in the Hong Kong Cricket Club Tournament, the uncertainty of the weather keeping away most of the competitors looked to play. The matches resulted as follows:—

Handicap Singles "B."

Mixed Doubles Handicap.

representative of the Clubs in the Colony, together with the Hong Kong Cricket Club, should exercise a little more control. There is no doubt that the H.K.C.C. Committee have a historic right to represent the M.C.C. here, working with the Club Captains as the M.C.C. does with the County Captains at home. After all, the H.K.C.C. ran cricket for over 40 years before there were other teams in the Colony outside the Services. It is not sufficiently remembered that the Interport Matches were originally matches between the Hong Kong Cricket Club and the Shanghai Cricket Club, and the Singapore Cricket Club. Recent cricket history in the F.M.S. and the Straits leads me to think that, in this latter case at least, we may go back to the old custom.

The League Meeting.

I have dealt with this at some length (although I am, of course, nothing but a voice crying in the wilderness), as probably it is the last time this season I shall get the chance. I want to see more energy at the next meeting of the League. It is the only meeting in the year when cricketers get together and I should like to see more executive energy there. Of course, if people are satisfied with this season's cricket, well and good. But if not, most Clubs have their annual meetings before the League meeting and might well give their newly elected cricket representatives a mandate!

Umpires.

It has been suggested that the League Committee should appoint umpires for all League games. This, I think, is going a step too far, and, moreover, I doubt of its practicability. But it might at least keep a list of those big-hearted men who would put their names down as ready to give their services as umpires if required.

To-morrow's Games.

There is, as at present advised, a League match at Happy Valley which will complete the programme of the Civil Service and the K.C.C. So far as I know at present the C.S. will be at full strength save that Ling comes in for Baker, who is unable to play. Strange will be first reserve, I believe, and Griffiths and McClellan come in. Loyal, the two Finches, Brace, Goodwin, Hung, Zimmer, Burnett, Mackay, Lawrence and Carey are to represent Kowloon. There should be a most excellent game if both sides can turn out at full strength and on paper the result should be a draw. The only other match of which I have heard—and this definitely is hearsay alone, is a Hong match between Wayfong and Taifoo, on the H.K.C.C. ground. I had expected that the Club would clear off their last League match—with the Gunners—but it is apparently not so. The latter side is two shy at present, as they have yet to play the University, and as the latter's ground is up for repairs, I hardly know what will happen. Probably it won't get played, but this would be a pity.

R. ABBIT.

P.S.—No notes or records of League games have so far been sent me by any Clubs. I hope they will help me in this matter.—R.A.

SOLDIERS AT PLAY.

BORDERERS' SPORTS.

SERGEANTS' RACE OVER A FURLONG.

After rain had interfered with their sports on two afternoons, the South Wales Borderers were favoured with fair weather yesterday when the rest of the events were decided.

Ground conditions were not too good but the competitors entered into the events with spirit. During the afternoon the Sergeants were put under a test when they had to compete in a 220-yard race. This created a lot of amusement, especially when a particularly burly individual was seen labouring over the distance, and growing very red in his efforts to keep pace with the "rest of the field" who insisted on running away!

At the conclusion of the sports it was announced that the prizes would be distributed at 11.30 a.m. to-morrow at Murray Barracks.

LADY CYNTHIA TO SIT TIGHT.

"CHEEK AND HUMBLED" TO ASK HER TO RESIGN.

Lady Cynthia Mosley, M.P., who has resigned from the Labour Party and joined the New Party, formed by her husband, Sir Oswald Mosley, has made it clear that she does not intend to resign her seat in Parliament.

Addressing a large meeting of her constituents at Stoke-on-Trent, she referred, in terms of indignation, to suggestions that resignation from the Party should be followed by resignation of her seat.

"I look upon the suggestion," she declared, "as the most tremendous cheek and humbug." She added that she still stood for every pledge she made and everything she said at the General Election.

Uproar.

"If it comes to resigning it is not me who ought to be asked to resign but the Labour Government. I should not in decency come before you as an official Labour candidate at the next election and support this Government with which I so heartily disagree."

Upbraiding the Government for its failure to deal with unemployment, Lady Cynthia said the Government could not make the excuse that they were in a minority. The Liberals, who have been urging the Government to take action, would have supported work schemes.

Although there were many cries of "Resign," the meeting, on the whole, gave Lady Cynthia an orderly hearing.

Uproar arose, however, when questions were invited. "Please, please, please, give order," she exclaimed on one occasion, when several persons were shouting at the same time.

A CONVERT.

Mr. W. E. D. Allen, M.P., for West Belfast, has resigned from the Conservative Party.

"I am giving my support to Sir Oswald Mosley's party," he stated on Saturday, "and I am going to Belfast on Tuesday to give my reasons to the Unionist Association." Mr. Allen, who is 30, is chairman of David Allen & Son, Limited, printers and billposters.

SHADOWLESS LIGHTING.

BOON TO HOSPITALS AND NURSING HOMES.

It has been a long-standing reproach that British-made lighting fittings designed specially for the use of the medical profession in operating theatres of most of the prominent English hospitals were practically unknown.

Such a state of affairs prompted a period of serious research on the part of the G.E.C., and as a consequence a shadowless light-giving fitting, combining all the essential characteristics necessary to surgical work, was evolved, not only to do the work equally as well as fittings of foreign make, but at a considerably lower cost.

By the use of these new G.E.C. lighting devices, perfectly shadowless illumination is provided over a given operating area, even when the head and hands of the surgeon are interposed between the light source and the subject.

There is little doubt that this new development will prove a boon to British hospitals and Nursing Homes, especially in view of the widespread extension of electrical energy to districts that have hitherto been denied the benefits attaching to electric lighting.

These new fittings are suitable for large hospital operating wards, and also for small theatres and surgeries where it is necessary to have a very high intensity of illumination in a restricted area, and where also it is vitally important that as nearly as possible shadowless illumination shall prevail on the working plane during actual surgical examination and practice.

Re-direction of Light.

In the larger type of fitting the central under portion is opaque, permitting the head of the surgeon to occupy a zone of comparative darkness with almost complete freedom from radiant heat. The fitting normally employs a 200-watt Osram gas-filled lamp and the illumination produced is approximately of three hundred candle power. In this model the principle of operation is the re-direction of the light from the source by means of a mirror system to a series of large metal spinning. This produces a convergent hollow cone of light with its apex on the working plane. Details of its construction are worthy of note. The metal work of the main fitting is of spun aluminium, and is therefore light and portable and easy of manipulation. The finish is sprayed with white cellulose, and all the small parts are chromium plated. Internally the reflecting system consists of corrected mirror sections, and a specially designed Georay floodlight, which is provided with accurate focusing and lamp positioning device. A specially designed diffusing glass, constructed of five sections, is fitted, and the unit is mounted on a gimbal and equipped with a totally enclosed counterweight.

In the smaller model, which is 20 ins. in diameter, all the reflectors are chromium plated and no mirror glass is employed. The principle of operation, however, is similar, while the special light diffusing front glass eliminates all stray light from making any notable alteration to the beam. This model is constructed of spun copper and is chromium plated inside and out, the inner surface acting as a double reflector. It is fitted with a spun copper parabolic bottom reflector, and has a simple focusing device. The front diffusing glass, which is in two sections, is of very low absorption. The unit is supplied with a gimbal and an adjustable counterweight on a ball-bearing head, and is designed for use with a 100-watt Osram gas-filled lamp or, alternatively, with a 12-volt, 60-watt automobile type lamp, which can derive its power from a motor-car or wireless accumulator. Both models can be kept clean with little trouble.

The adoption of these new lighting fittings for the surgical profession warrants the very earnest consideration of all responsible for the equipment of hospitals and nursing homes.

METAL MARKETS.

PRICES REMAIN STEADY.

The following review of the metal markets, dated March 30, has been issued by Messrs. Rudolf Wolff & Co., London:—

Markets have been quiet and prices, ruling steady throughout the week, show little material change as compared with last Friday's close.

Tin. Tin has been quiet and comparatively steady. The price advanced to $125.75 three months on Wednesday following some fairly active support, but since then easier conditions have prevailed and part of the advance has been lost, the market however still closing $1.10 higher as compared with our last report. Sales in the East during the week have amounted to 1,403 tons; shipments thence up to the 16th inst. were 2,933 tons, and for the month are estimated at 7,000 to 7,500 tons.

Straits and Banca Tin are quoted at premiums of about $2.15. Demand on the part of consumers both in this country and on the Continent continues quiet, but rather more activity has been reported from America. Fundamental conditions remain very much the same as hitherto reported, the undercurrent continues steady, and pending fresh developments there is no definite indication of pronounced movement in either direction.

In spite of the indifferent response on the part of the trade, a good deal of resistance is shown at current levels and the market is still from time to time actively supported by those who hold the opinion that restricted output will in due course restore the market to higher levels.

Later, industrial reports from America have been slightly more reassuring; an improved demand on the part of consumers may follow and would no doubt develop on a more important scale, were confidence to return consequent upon a more definite improvement in the industrial situation generally, for, owing to the hand-to-mouth policy of buying which consumers have adopted for some time now, their stocks must be comparatively small.

Turnover for the week 2,975 tons.

Copper. Copper has been quiet and easier, but recovering later the price shows a decline of only 3/9d. as compared with our last report. No further change has been notified in the export price of Electrolytic, which is quoted at 10.55 cents c.i.f. Continent. Trade demand is still very light, consumers have apparently covered their requirements for some little time to come.

The Standard market presents a rather staid appearance, there being on the whole less disposition to sell, and the immediate future depends on the ability of the Association to hold the price of Electrolytic until such time as trade demand again revives.

Turnover for the week 3,075 tons.

Lead. Lead has been irregular but on the whole a shade easier and, reacting from the highest points, shows a small decline of 2/6d. for March and 6/3d. for June as compared with our last report. Conditions in this market remain very much the same as recently reported.

Business with consumers fails to expand and supplies therefore are still more than sufficient to meet current requirements, so that some control will still require to be exercised if further decline is to be prevented.

Spelter. Spelter has been quiet and steady and the price, showing little variation in the course of the week, closes 3/9d. to 5/- higher as compared with our last report. Business with consumers in this country and on the Continent remains dull, the galvanizing industry in particular reporting lack of orders both for Home trade and export. Selling pressure on the London market, however, has been largely relaxed and the market, displaying a staid undertone, has recovered a little later in the week.

Conditions otherwise remain very much the same; the low price combined with a restricted output stimulates from time to time some buying, but of a rather speculative character and insufficient to occasion sustained advance, which can only result from a more definite improvement in consumption. There is at present no indication of favourable development in this direction, but in view of the very quiet conditions which have obtained for some weeks in consuming industries, it seems not unreasonable to anticipate moderate revival at an early date.

The market in America remains quiet and producers there, according to reports, have little difficulty in marketing current output, which is on a very reduced scale. The heavy stocks meanwhile remain more or less intact.

Turnover for the week 2,025 tons.

THE BLACK HEATH CRIME.

NEW SEARCH BY THE POLICE.

TALK OVERHEARD IN TRAMCAR.

A house-to-house search for a domestic servant, whom the police are anxious to interview, is being made by detectives in the Blackheath district, says a Home paper.

Investigations have been reopened there regarding the murder of Louisa Maud Steele.

It is seven weeks since the mutilated body of the 18-year-old Plumstead girl was found on the heath. Since then hundreds of statements have been taken and many men interviewed, but the murderer remains undiscovered.

Plain-clothes officers visited houses in Lee-road, where Miss Steele was employed as a servant, to question household employees.

They also called at houses in Lee Park and Manor Park, on the border of the heath.

The fresh clue which is being followed up, resulted from a conversation overheard in a tram-car a few days ago.

One of the passengers, a woman, visited Blackheath-road police station and made a statement which had reference to a young man who was stated to be on friendly terms with the dead girl.

Officers were given a description of a young domestic servant, of stocky build, who is believed to have met Miss Steele during her employment.

It is hoped that she might be able to throw fresh light on the girl's movements before the murder.

The police officers also asked a number of young men to account for their movements on the night of January 22, when Miss Steele was last seen alive.

ATHLETE HERO OF CAMBRIDGE.

FOUR EVENTS WON IN 40 MINUTES.

A feat unprecedented in the history of the Oxford and Cambridge athletics contest was accomplished at Stamford Bridge by E. M. Tisdall, the Cambridge president.

Tisdall won four events—the 120yds. hurdles, weight putting, long jump and quarter mile—in the space of 40 minutes and crowned what has been a notable career at the university.

He will leave next September for Rhodesia where he is to take up farming.

When asked if he would represent South Africa in future international contests, he said that Ireland was his country, and that if he competed in international events he would do so as an Irishman.

Rugby-Barred.

Tisdall will tell you, writes F. N. Drake Digby, the Cambridge time-keeper, that rugby football is his first love, but he has had to cut that out of his programme.

Before his father's death some months ago he had hoped to compete in the next Olympic Games and then return to Rugby. When his father died, however, he had to make up his mind to go to Rhodesia, and his future as an athlete is now in the balance.

Tisdall was never regarded as a potential athletic champion when he was at Shrewsbury. He was considered the best gymnast the school had ever turned out, but he achieved only ordinary success as an athlete and he arrived at Cambridge still hounding with the old-fashioned bent knee so beloved of schoolboys.

He comes of a well-known Irish family, almost every member of which has displayed some particular gift; but he is the first to make his name as an athlete.

Cambridge is very proud of Tisdall's athletic prowess, his charming personality and his ability as president.

EARL OF HAREWOOD.

NAMED AS A DEFENDANT IN LIBEL SUIT.

The name of the Earl of Harewood was mentioned in the King's Bench Division in connection with a libel action, in which Mr. Ernest Edward S. Cookson sued the Pony Turf Club and the Sports Printing Press.

Sir Patrick Hastings, who is to appear for the defence, said he was instructed that Lord Harewood, the first defendant, could not attend the Courts in the early days of next term, because he had a public engagement. Other defendants, including the Earl of Carnarvon, were in a similar position.

Mr. Justice Horridge fixed the case to be heard not before April 20, application to be made to him in the meantime, if necessary.

SPRING CLEANING CHICAGO.

AMBITIOUS TASK SET BY MAYOR CERMAK.

[REUTERS' AMERICAN SERVICE.]

New York, April 8. The only gunplay following "Tony" Cermark's victory was rocket shooting at the stars, hence a London editor, who telephoned to the Chicago Police Headquarters enquiring how much bloodshed there had been, was surprised to learn that there had been none.

Another London paper sent a special correspondent to Chicago to telegraph the full toll of expected fatalities in electoral street battles, but there was none.

The latest figures show that Mr. Cermark's margin of victory was 101,000, which is unprecedented in Chicago's history.

Mr. Cermark, in a speech, said that Chicago would not be disappointed in his administration, adding: "This begins a new day for Chicago. Gangsters, muddled finances, and City Hall hippodroming will cease. We shall set ourselves the task of preparing the city for the successful centennial exhibition of 1933."

AUSTRALIA'S INFLATION PROPOSALS.

CAMPAIGN AGAINST GOVERNMENT INAUGURATED.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

Adelaide, April 9. "We are striking the match that will set Australia ablaze!" declared Mr. Lyons on his arrival to inaugurate a whirlwind campaign against the Government's inflation proposals.

Strong bodies of moderate opinion have already rallied to the support of the campaign.

Mr. Lyons was tumultuously received, and flowers were rained on his car.

WHOLESALE PRICES IN BRITAIN.

DOWNWARD MOVEMENT NEARING AN END.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rugby, April 8. A further check to the rate of decline in wholesale prices as measured at the Board of Trade is shown by the index number for March.

The index is returned at 63.7, a fall of only 3 per cent. from February.

This is the smallest monthly percentage decline recorded by the Board since the downward movement began in October, 1929, and follows on the previous smallest fall recorded last month of 3 per cent.

There has been a fall of 15 per cent. since March last year.

The figures suggest that the downward movement of wholesale prices, which has been a marked feature of the world economic crisis, may be nearing an end and that the upward trend to which economists look for reviving enterprise and stimulating industry, may be within sight.

BRITAIN'S TEA DUTY.

HEAVY DELIVERIES MADE TO IMPORTERS.

[THROUGH REUTER'S AGENCY.]

London, April 8. In order to be on the safe side and guard against the possibility of Mr. Snowden restoring the tea duty in the coming Budget, very heavy deliveries of tea have been made to big tea firms in Britain for some days, according to the Evening News.

BERMUDA LOCAL FRANCHISE.

TO CONFORM WITH CONTEMPORARY INSTITUTIONS.

[BRITISH WIRELESS SERVICE.]

Rugby, April 8. The Colonial Secretary, Lord Passfield, in a despatch to the Officer Administering the Government of Bermuda requests the Bermuda Legislature in the near future to consider the extension of the local franchise, which would bring it into closer conformity with contemporary British institutions elsewhere.

The despatch points out that the registered electors in Bermuda are less than six per cent., and also that throughout the Empire the franchise has been very generally granted to women.

NORWAY'S GRAVE INDUSTRIAL SITUATION.

LOOKOUT ALREADY IN FORCE.

COPENHAGEN, April 8. The threatened lockout of 50,000 men has been postponed to April 20.

Negotiations for a settlement are continuing.

Lockout Begins in Denmark. The postponed lockout concerns 50,000 Danish workmen. On the contrary, Norwegian workers are not fortunate. Reuter's correspondent at Oslo reports that a lockout of 43,000 men began to-night.

U.S. RED CROSS FEED ONE MILLION.

RELIEF TO TERMINATE IN JUNE.

[REUTER'S AMERICAN SERVICE.]

WASHINGTON, April 8. The Red Cross is still feeding 1,000,000 persons in the drought-stricken area.

According to the Chairman's report to President Hoover, the maximum number fed at the peak of the distress was 2,500,000.

The situation is now improving, and the Red Cross hopes to end the relief in June.

FREE CHURCH AND STATE CHURCH.

DISESTABLISHMENT URGED.

Disestablishment of the Church of England was urged at the National Free Church Council Conference at the concluding meeting at Weston-super-Mare.

A resolution was moved declaring that disestablishment and disendowment constituted "an urgent reform needed for religious liberty and equality."

After a discussion, however, the resolution was re-drafted and passed unanimously in the following terms:

"The assembly declares its conviction that the time has come when, in the interests of the Kingdom of God, the Anglican Church should be disestablished and disendowed."

"With the utmost goodwill towards the Established Church, the assembly believes that this would increase its spiritual efficiency, as already shown in the principality of Wales."

"The assembly further believes that this would promote the principle of religious liberty and equality, for which every Free Church stands, and remove some of the present hindrances to a fuller Christian fellowship among the Churches."

Before the resolution was passed Dr. J. Alfred Sharp said he "respected and loved the Mother Church," but believed that any church suffered in efficiency if it were connected with the State.

The Rev. W. E. Soothill, Professor of Chinese at Oxford University, said that the missionary might learn many lessons from the trader, for trade was one of the great civilizers of humanity. But trade could not express the culture which was the truer spirit of the West.

"It is not possible," he asked, "to form a synthetic religion in each of the countries where the great ethnic religions are so strongly entrenched? Cannot our Lord's teaching be added to or interwoven with Buddhism or Islam or Hinduism or Confucianism?"

AGED WOMAN'S DEATH IN VILLAGE INN.

PORTER COMMITTED ON CAPITAL CHARGE.

Joseph Samuel Cowley, aged 29, was committed for trial at Bodmin Assizes by the Stratton magistrates on a charge of murdering Mrs. Mary Anne Dunnill, aged 79, who was found suffocated on February 7 at the Pentowan Hotel, Bude. Cowley was granted legal assistance under the Poor Prisoners' Defence Act.

Mr. Ross Paskley, opening the case for the Director of Public Prosecutions, explained that Cowley had been employed at the hotel since June, 1929, as assistant porter. Mrs. Dunnill, an "old lady" of 70 was aunt-in-law to Mrs. Crisp, with her husband was the proprietress of the hotel. On the morning of February 7, Mr. and Mrs. Crisp left the hotel in order to visit Exeter. The only other person beside Mrs. Dunnill then in the hotel was Cowley. When they returned at night they found Mrs. Dunnill badly bound and enveloped in bedclothing. Death was due to suffocation.

Cowley was arrested at his mouth, he made a statement in which he said that Mrs. Dunn surprised him while he was rifling a chest of drawers. "I did not think she was dead," he added, "but I shot too much of her harm her in that way. I only did it to keep her quiet."

It was submitted that this was a case in which the Bench might consider a committal for trial on the charge of manslaughter, the only thing Cowley contemplated being the necessity to keep Mrs. Dunn quiet until he got away.

The Bench after a retirement committed Cowley for trial on capital charge.
